How dangerous is an electric arc flash in a switchgear?

An electric arc flash is an extremely dangerous and an undesirable event in a switchgear, as temperatures in excess of 20,000 °C and violent overpressure waves are a consequence. Hence, detecting and isolating the system to prevent such a catastrophic event is a top priority.

Are arc flash and arc-flash studies a safety concern?

Arc-flash and arc-flash studies are also clarified. This White Paper also highlights a safety concern when HV/MV switchgear fails catastrophically, particularly oil-filled switchgear assembly. Within IEC Standards, HV switchgear are used on systems above 1 kV up to 52 kV. In North America MV is any voltage between 600 V and 69 kV.

Is arc rated switchgear IEC rated?

Within IEC Standards, internal arc rated switchgear manufactured prior to 2003 may only have been tested for internal arc in the main MV switching compartment, which was the optional requirements within IEC 60298 (the standard that was superseded by IEC 62271-200).
