Why does Germany need more charging points?

The VDA holds politicians primarily responsible: "By 2030, Germany needs more than one million charging points for electric cars and transport," says the VDA spokesman. "To achieve this, 2,000 new charging points have to be installed every week. However, currently only about 250 are built on public land every week." That's why more speed is needed.

How many superfast charging points are there in Germany?

According to the Federal Network Agency, there are currently some 21,500 public charging points in Germany, but only about 800 of them are superfast charging points of more than 175 kW (the charging speed that would be equivalent to the time it takes to refuel a vehicle with traditional fuels).
