How to make a mini base station

Overview

This guide provides instructions for building a budget DIY GPS/GNSS base station and receiver, along with an NTRIP server client using an ESP32 microcontroller and the Unicorecomm UM980 GNSS receiver.What can you do with a base station?

There's plenty of fun things you could achieve with such a base station: reverse-engineering of proprietary technology, security research, and probing for vulnerabilities through WWAN interfaces rarely considered as an attack surface. Maybe you could even set up your own cell network — if you ever go sailing in neutral waters, that is.

How do I create a GNSS base station?

A GNSS Base Station can also be created using a SBC (single board computer). Thanks to originaldev on the SparkFun forums for creating a Raspberry Pi based setup. You can checkout their build instructions here. Deploy! That's it!.

Do you need a 2G base station?

As such, grab your Faraday cages and lead-lined fridges, and make sure that you don't cause any illegal interference if you do end up exploring this path. We've generally seen 2G base stations over the years, but with the sunset of 2G, those have only been useful in an increasingly low number of countries, and, every once in a while, a hacker camp.
